Animal Therapy, Control, Behavior

Independent Study Seminar Course in Animal-Assisted Therapy & Activities

This course is designed to help individuals who have a knowledge of the healing powers of animals to continue exploring the therapeutic applications of the human-animal bond in this exciting, emerging interdisciplinary field. Students typically are the general public seeking vocational and volunteer opportunities to make their lives and work more meaningful through AAT, and professionals in such fields as physical, recreational or occupational therapy; health care; mental health; veterinary technology; animal behavior; and human or social services. Guest lecturers, field trips, and a student research project will help participants to develop practical programs that improve human health through the creative use of pet ambassadors. Small seminar-format classes will individualize instruction to students' interest areas. This course offers a Certificate and is a follow-up to the Survey Course in Animal-Assisted Therapy & Activities, but that course is not a prerequisite. Instructor: Philip Arkow

Blackwood Location Cost: $400
