Law for Landlords and Tenants

Whether you are just leasing a room for the school year or managing a multi-unit apartment complex, you can benefit from this how-to-approach to New Jersey landlord/tenant law. This course is primarily intended for landlords and their managing agents but will also benefit tenants who want to know their rights. The course covers the things you should look for in leases, what you can do to check out a tenant before leasing, the rights and responsibilities on both sides, security deposits, right to renew, dealing with late rent payments, grounds for eviction and required notices to quit. The student will also learn how to file and prosecute or defend a suit for eviction as well as how to prosecute or defend suits for unpaid rent, excess damage, and return of security deposits.
