Teachers may select from the following institutes:

BIOLOGY

This intensive, four-day course will focus on the AP Biology Curriculum Framework which focuses on Big Ideas, Essential Knowledge, Enduring Understandings, and Science Practices that are intended to make “doing science” a centerpiece of the course. Particularly important will be the time and skill set necessary to support teachers in transitioning to the inquiry-based AP Biology laboratory component. Participants will be given tools and strategies for modifying traditional experiments into inquiry-based models. Time will also be devoted to the AP Biology exam design and essay grading approaches; as well as, syllabus development for the AP Audit requirements.

CALCULUS AB

This institute will focus on the AP Calculus AB curriculum as outlined by the College Board. Major topics in the curriculum will be investigated from a numerical, graphical and analytical point of view. Graphing calculator technology will be incorporated. Curriculum topics will be introduced via lecture and demonstration, problem solving activities, and cooperative learning. Participants will review calculus topics, develop teaching strategies and formulate forms of assessment. Group discussions will focus on the issues of teaching an AP Calculus course – such issues to be determined from the needs and interests of the participants at the institute.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE AND COMPOSITION

The AP English Language and Composition institute focuses on unpacking the essential compositional and analytical skills associated with student success in the course and on the exam. In a hands-on workshop environment, participants identify and develop both the appropriate pedagogies and curricular means leading to helping students achieve a solid mastery of the elements of close reading and academic discourse as they gain a detailed understanding of the implicit tasks inherent in the test. An atmosphere encouraging the exchange of best practices characterizes the institute. Participants will leave not only with specific assignments but an outline syllabus they can use in designing and developing their course.

ENGLISH LITERATURE AND COMPOSITION

This course gives participants opportunities to discuss, create, and plan together while surveying the AP English Literature course. They will be exposed to both canonical and non-canonical literature covering a wide range of authors. Participants will also review AP teacher workshop materials, including the teacher's guide, course description, exam specification and examples from various exams. Other highlights include: ideas for syllabus development, scoring student work with rubrics, becoming acquainted with the electronic media used to support the AP teacher such as AP Central, Electronic Discussion Group and useful websites.

EUROPEAN HISTORY

This workshop will concentrate on teaching strategies, core concepts, recent historiography, alternative assessments, and grading the AP exam. Basic skills of mastering the short answer, the DNQ, Long essay, and multiple-choice strategies will be an important focus of this APSI. Participants will leave with suggestions on teaching a meaningful and engaging course.

FRENCH LANGUAGE AND CULTURE

Participants will examine the major themes that will drive the French AP curriculum along with the numerous sub-themes. Designing units of instruction will be an important part of the workshop as well as examining sample exam items. Developing a familiarity with the three modes of communication – interpersonal, interpretive and presentational – will be a key factor in our work. Another feature of the workshop will be becoming proficient in interpreting achievement-level descriptions that will assist teachers in evaluating student work. Time will be spent on integrating authentic materials and technology into our curriculum. Participants will leave the workshop with an abundance of resources to satisfy all the needs of the language and culture course.

ITALIAN LANGUAGE AND CULTURE

Participants will examine the requirements of the course and exam, discuss classroom strategies and engage in a professional exchange of ideas. In addition, they will examine the components of the AP curriculum framework including: learning objectives, description of the expected student performance and themes. They will discuss instructional design for the course that integrates cultural content into language lessons and connects with modes of communication in meaningful ways. Participants will also review AP teacher workshop materials, including the teacher's guide, course description, exam specification and examples from various exams. Other highlights include: ideas for syllabus development, scoring student work, becoming acquainted with the electronic media used to support the AP teacher such as AP Central, Electronic Discussion Group and useful websites.

PSYCHOLOGY

AP Psychology teachers will focus on the knowledge and skills needed to build and maintain a successful AP program. This APSI will address the particular needs of teachers new to the AP Psychology curriculum. The latest updates will be reviewed with emphasis contained in the College Board Curriculum Handbook and AP Audit, various syllabi for one/two semester courses, sequence pacing, textbook options, supplemental materials, and other resources to help in the AP classroom. Emphasis will be on nuts-and-bolts best practices with plenty of time for questions and answers. We will also cover some content areas that are typically more difficult for students and teachers, including neurophysiology/biochemistry of behavior; research methods & statistics; and sensation & perception. Successful classroom activities will be demonstrated, including draw-and-color activities and building brains from Play-Doh. Additionally, the recent AP Exam will be reviewed and “best practice” ideas will be shared for both Multiple Choice and Free Response Questions.

SPANISH LANGUAGE AND CULTURE

The AP Spanish Language Institute is designed for teachers of all levels of Spanish with emphasis for teachers of the AP Spanish Language and Culture

Course. The participants will explore the integration of the three modes of communication (Interpersonal, Interpretive, and Presentational) defined in the Standards for Foreign Language Learning in the 21st Century. The participants will learn how to integrate technology while using authentic material to design lessons based on the six themes integrating language and culture. The workshop leader will provide resources and activities as the participants prepare lessons incorporating the recommended context and overarching essential questions to engage the learners. Participants will have the opportunity to create innovative lessons as well as revamp their current lessons. Time will be allotted for those participants who need to prepare the syllabus for the audit.

U.S. HISTORY

This session will review techniques for dealing successfully with the new multiple choices and essay questions; as well as, for the revised Document-based question (DBQ) and Free Response Essay. The new Themes and Historical Thinking Skills along with the Curriculum Framework will be major areas of discussion in the sessions. Both content and methodology will be emphasized throughout the course. This course provides the analytical skills and factual knowledge necessary to deal critically with the problems and materials in United States history, teaching students to assess historical materials and weigh the evidence and interpretations. The course develops the skills to reach conclusions on the basis of informed judgment and to present reasons and evidence clearly and persuasively in essay format. Many new teaching techniques and materials will also be examined and demonstrated.
